

LYING WOMAN OF THE MONTH

Kat Banyard

Justice for men & boys (and the women who love them) is pleased to award the gender feminist campaigner and authoress Kat Banyard its inaugural Lying Woman of the Month award. The Guardian named her 'the most influential feminist in the country' in 2010. She was the founder of Feminista UK.¹ On 8 March 2013, in an interview with Jon Snow on Channel 4 News, she made a false claim about the frequency with which schoolgirls suffer sexual harassment. We publicly challenged her to retract the claim, and have since done so again, to no avail. A video of that interview, along with our challenge, may be found on our YouTube channel.² Details about the frequency with which schoolgirls and schoolboys suffer sexual harassment, and our challenge of Kat Banyard – along with material on other feminists, Laura Bates and Finn Mackay – can be found in an article³ published by the most-visited and most influential men's human rights advocacy website in the world, 'A Voice for Men'.
