

Caitlin Moran

GORMLESS FEMINIST OF THE MONTH

J4MB presents the January 2016 Gormless Feminist of the Month award to Caitlin Moran for her contribution to a BBC video recording taken at a Women's Equality Party event. Ms Moran managed to pack more gormlessness into 12 seconds (1:12 – 1:24) than some people manage in a lifetime:

Well, the thing is about equality, is that you need someone to actively make sure it's being enforced, you know, the idea of equality is everywhere, but someone needs to come along – a bit like a Mum – and make sure that's actually happening, that all the rules are written down, and everyone is playing nicely.

Embarrassing, or what? A list of all the Gormless Feminist of the Month award winners is here.

Sophie Walker, WEP leader, has won the Lying Feminist of the Month award. Sandy Toxic, party spokeswoman, won it twice within three months. Special Snowflake (Laura Bates) also won it twice, while Caroline Criado-Perez won it on three occasions. She laughed and admitted to Phillip Schofield on the ITV programme This Morning that she'd won the award because... er... she'd lied. A link to the ITV video is here. A full list of all the winners of our Lying Feminist of the Month award is here.