"Plagiarism is not a sin", eh? Well, maybe not for those without a moral compass, which obviously includes all feminists, including the authoress of this piece.

Feminism has always been the pursuit of female supremacy, "equality" merely being a staging post on the way. Constant repetitions of lies and myths are the trademarks of feminists.

I urge followers of Unherd to watch Professor Janice Fiamengo's short video, "Why I Am Still An Anti-Feminist":

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qyRUHSzZa4&list=PLGFFi6pRcNcdQTe1G3Tw4Td9jyhY2w74&index=2>

Her 39-video history of feminism, Fiamengo File 2.0, relates the truth about the history of feminism – the history you won't hear from feminists:

I invite Unherd followers to attend the next International Conference on Men's Issues, to be held in Budapest next August <http://icmi2024.icmi.info>. Janice will be the keynote speaker again, her talk title:

"Calling a Moratorium on Women's Tears: How Women Use Damselling to Manipulate Men, and Why Men Must Resist It."

Have a good weekend!

A poor, vulnerable, black female? Gay, the poor thing, belongs to one of the ruling families in the corrupt hellhole that is Haiti. She was educated, if that's the word in elite prep schools before she graced Harvard with her presence.

An excellent post Sir!

In your last sentence I would have substituted polluted for graced.
